Additional Reason(s):Effort: I put forth a decent amount of effort into this course. It is not my hardest class, but that is to be expected since it is a 200 level course. I think the professor challenged us to consider the material in different ways.Understanding & Appreciation:Intellectual Growth:Quality: I think a strength of Professor Walker's is his ability to lecture as if he is telling a story. His lectures are very engaging and I think it is because of his monologue like speaking style. It made the class much more interesting, especially since history is not a subject I usually like very much. One weakness is that he poses a lot of questions to the class as a whole and everyone is confused as to whether it is rhetorical or not so no one answers. Additionally, we know that if we wait a few seconds he will answer his own question which furthers the confusion as to if we should answer or not. I also think the individual fun fact presentations could have been a bit more structured, it was a bit unclear what was expected of us from that. Overall, Professor Walker is a caring teaching who seems genuinely interested in the course material which makes class more interesting.

Additional Reason(s):Effort: A lot of effort. I would use flashcards for all the exams and really use the study guide provided to my benefit and clearly be able to explain everything on it. It all felt straight forward which was nice.Understanding & Appreciation: I had no idea the appreciation I would gain for US presidents and the history of the constitution after taking this course. I liked how this course was told like a storyIntellectual Growth: I definitely read more textbook style readings than I had for any class before, and also reading direct speeches was something I had never done before and I realized how much I could learn from direct quotes as much as I didQuality: The power points were really helpful as well as the mini presentations we did throughout semester. Effort: I felt as though the work load in this class was spaced out in a very balanced manner. I was challenged by the essays, as well as test preparation, and put effort into my preparation for both.

Understanding & Appreciation: This course immensely expanded my knowledge on the function of the executive, and genuinely made me want to come to class each day to learn more about the subject. The material was presented in a very engaging way and made the information presented resonate.

Intellectual Growth: I felt as though this course contributed to my intellectual growth in that it challenged me to create a perspective on each of the presidents, which helped me to realize where my political ideology aligns.

Quality: In my opinion, the quality of teaching in this course was incredibly strong. Professor Walker's class is by far my favorite class that I've taken at Colgate thus far and one of the classes that I have learned the most from.

Reason(s): Exploration of possible major or minor
Interest in the course materialAdditional Reason(s):Effort: I put in a great deal of effort into the course and the work assigned within it.Understanding & Appreciation: I feel as though I now have a greater understanding and appreciation of the political ideologies and techniques of America's presidents, as well as many of the underlying stories of the presidency that I found quite interesting. Before taking the course I had known basic names and dates, but getting context surrounding them has been very helpful in further expanding my knowledge of the subject matter.Intellectual Growth: I think that I grew as a writer, especially in being able to confine my ideas into shorter essays and answers, which is useful in writing concisely. I also have gotten better at finding evidence within primary sources that supports my arguments, which is something I hadn't really worked on in the past.Quality: I really enjoy the teaching in this course. It's engaging and I'm always happy to come to this class and learn from it. However, sometimes we do fall slightly behind, which can impact the quizzes we have taken, as we are taking them on things that haven't been taught yet. This can cause some confusion on what to read outside of class. Also, Professor Walker spells Zachary Taylor's name wrong, both on his slides and on the test, which is a very nitpicky complaint, but one that is probably important in the context of this class. Still, this is a really enjoyable class, and I'm glad to have taken it.

Effort: I put a high level of effort into this course in order to complete assigned readings on time, as well as complete reflection essays to the best of my ability. I prepared for exams by reviewing class notes and readings, as well as watching the recorded study sessions that were offered.

Understanding & Appreciation: I have developed an intricate understanding of the executive office, as well as past Presidents and what they have done for the United States. This course re-affirmed my interest in American politics and inspired a fascination for this complex subject.

Intellectual Growth: This course allowed me to develop memorization skills, as well as improve my writing skills. This course also forced me to think analytically about course material.

Quality: I absolutely loved taking this course with Professor Walker. His style of teaching and lectures made the class even more interesting. It was clear that Professor Walker is passionate and excited about the course material and was very easy to learn from. His willingness to provide study sessions prior to exams, as well as always being accessible via email, office hours, zoom, etc. greatly contributed to my better learning and understanding of the subject. The assigned readings were not too demanding/overwhelming and I thought all coursework was fair and announced well in advance. Professor Walker has inspired my passion for political science and I am so glad he is apart of the Colgate community!

Effort: I put a fair deal of effort into this class. I did the readings for class and spent plenty of time studying for the exams. The exams were very fair and he was very helpful in guiding you toward studying the correct material with helpful study guides. I also put a good amount of time into the reflection essays that were due.

Understanding & Appreciation: This course was very interesting and it greatly contributed to my learning and appreciation of our government and the presidents. The lectures were very interesting and prof Walker was always engaged in all of his lectures.

Intellectual Growth: This class really got me to start thinking about our government and the presidents we have had. We learned about the founding of our country and all of the leaders we have so far. It is important to know about our government and this class help me learn a ton.

Quality: The quality of teaching in this course was amazing. Professor Walker is one of my favorite professors I have had here at Colgate. He is so passionate about the material and is so engaged during his very interesting lectures. He is so incredibly knowledgeable about the subject and is so kind and helpful to his students. He is helpful and truly wants his students to learn and do well in the course. This class was amazing and I would recommend Professor Walker to anyone and everyone.

Additional Reason(s):

Effort: I studied far in advance for every exam and would give myself ample time to do the reflection essays. I also did the readings every night and took notes in class.

Understanding & Appreciation: This course contributed to my understanding as I was able to learn so much about the presidents and learn about them in ways I had not previously. This class really took a magnifying lens into the lives and impacts of the presidents.

Intellectual Growth: This course helped me with my test taking skills and being concise as the reflections were only supposed to be a page or 2.

Quality: I really liked my professor's teaching style as he taught in a story telling like way that made each class very interesting. I do wish however, that he promoted more class discussion as I think it would be fun to discuss the presidents as a class.

Additional Reason(s):Effort: I put a lot of effort into this course. I did the reading in advance every day, and came to class ready to participate and engage with the material. I completed every assignment on time and prepared outside of class for exams.Understanding & Appreciation: This course made me gain a deeper understanding of US presidents. I enjoyed learning about them, and I want to continue to learn more about each one. I think that this course was well designed and gave a good introduction to the executive branch of American politics.Intellectual Growth: This course made me want to take more history and political science courses. It also made me not want to learn more about only the presidents, but about the specific events and policy decisions that took place during each of their terms. This class encouraged me to look at more of US history through an executive and presidential lens.Quality: Professor Walker was always very well prepared and had engaging lectures. I liked that he sought participation from students and had everyone give a short presentation that was usually about a lesser-known presidential fun fact. I thought that this made the class more engaging and fun to be in. I think this class could have been even more engaging if there was an element of discussion to it.

Effort: This course allowed me to put forth effort with ease. I know that doesn't really make sense but the way this class is structured is suited super well to my learning style. I studied a lot but it never felt like a chore.

Understanding & Appreciation: I appreciate the presidents. Bold claim but I am staking it! I am a lot more intrigued in the subject as well as the field in general.

Intellectual Growth: It allowed me to see a narrative of the connections between presidents, their leadership styles, and what their lasting legacy was on the United States.

Quality: Professor Walker slayed. He has a super compelling story-like nature to his classes that is super engaging. Occasionally he would say something crazy and we would be like "???" but he would always bounce back (I am sorry I cannot support a tv series about Jefferson and Sally being in love). Professor Walker is a great teacher and I wish I could take more courses with him.

Effort: I put a lot of efforts into keeping up with the readings in this course in order to be best prepared for the exams. I also liked having the reading quizzes because it made me closely analyze each of the readings which definitely gave me a better understanding of all of the course material.

Understanding & Appreciation: I feel so much more well-versed on all of our presidents, and the presidency in general. Most of the presidents we covered have always just been historical figures to me but it is really cool to now be able to match names and faces to important events in history.

Intellectual Growth: I think it is incredibly important to cover all of the past presidents in order to learn from any of their mistakes and be able to expect better from future presidents. I think this class has taught me a lot about what I am looking for in a future president, which makes me a much more intellectual and effective member of society.

Quality: Professor Walker is one of my absolute favorite professors. I think he did an incredible job teaching this course. The way he conveys his lectures is so engaging that most of our classes just felt like a really interesting story time. He not only taught me a lot about the presidency, but also how to public speak in general. His grading standards were incredible clear and fair and I really appreciate that none of our papers or exam questions felt like "gotcha" questions. It is abundantly clear that he wants his students to truly understand the material he is presenting and succeed in this class. Overall, an extremely fair, understanding, and personable professor who made this semester a great one. No weaknesses to discuss!

Additional Reason(s): Political Science is something of interest to me, and this course specifically diving into how political theory plays out in practice has been more engaging for me than I imagine an plan theory course would be.

Effort: I put all of the expected effort into this course, doing the readings and papers as assigned. This has also reflected well in my grade.

Understanding & Appreciation: Professor Walker does a wonderful job of making the subject matter interesting, whether it be through videos or his use of political cartoons. He also clearly pulls on the political themes throughout his lectures which has really helped me to see the presidency as one institution rather than looking at each president separately.

Intellectual Growth: I think that it has better prepared me to go into the world and have intellectual political discussions. I now know how so many issues and themes we are observing in real time can relate back to how we governed in the past.

Quality: I look forward to coming to this class every day. Professor Walker does a great job of being very clear with the political science of the material but also shares interesting facts for our enjoyment (like about the presidents' upbringings, marriages, etc). Professor Walker also encourages participation a lot, and because we are never forced to contribute, it feels like a safe place to share thoughts we have about the material or the readings. The only weakness that comes to mind is that the lectures have not lined up with the syllabus because we got behind, so I think in the future maybe adjusting the syllabus to line up a little more accurately would be great (which I believe Professor Walker already expressed intent to do)!

Additional Reason(s):Effort: I put in effort in this course by continuously doing the readings as well as working on writing reflections/studying for exams.Understanding & Appreciation: This course significantly increased my understanding and appreciation of the course subject because the information learned was something that I knew about but not super well, so learning more on the topic was very interesting and something that easily made sense. Additionally, the professor made learning about this topic very easy because of his lecture style, so that increased by desire to learn the material.Intellectual Growth: This course helped me maintain a steady habit of doing the readings while preparing for incoming exams or tests because most assignments were given far in advance.Quality: I found the quality of teaching in this course to be extremely high. The professor was always able to keep the class engaged during lectures and was very straightforward with what he would like to see from us. He created an environment where we as students had a desire to learn and it was clear that he wanted us to do well and succeed in his course.

Intellectual Growth: I had never taken a political science course before this and now I think it is a strong area of interest when considering a major.

Quality: Professor Walker is a great professor one of the best I have had here at Colgate. He really knows that material and knows how to teach it in a way that is very interesting to learn about. The only thing that was a weakness was the schedule that was sent out at the beginning of the year we strayed away from the schedule but it just showed how much he cared about each president that it took more than one class to explain some of them which I was okay with.

Additional Reason(s):

Effort: I put significant effort into this course through completion of all readings, studying the material and seeking out outside sources.

Understanding & Appreciation: This course increased my basic understanding of the subject matter and did also increase my appreciation.

Intellectual Growth: I do not think that this course requires serious critical thinking as it was largely a brief overview of many events. At times there was critical thinking but not as much as I would have hoped therefore I don't think it contributed greatly to my intellectual growth besides the memorization of events.

Quality: I think that Professor Walker was always well prepared and has certainly followed a clear format for his courses. We do always seem to be behind which reduced the amount of material we have covered in an already surface level course. I do think that often critical elements were excluded in regards to several presidents. I think that more needs to be done as far as critical thinking and accuracy as well as facilitating class discussions - at the same time it appears that most people do not do the reading so that also presents issues for discussions which is not entirely Professor Walkers fault.

Understanding & Appreciation: Professor Walker used his genuine passion for the subject to make interesting classes which allowed me to understand and appreciate the course material. He contributed to my understanding by elaborating on various areas related to the course material which provided a wholistic approach to the subject.

Intellectual Growth: This class contributed to my intellectual growth because professor Walker taught me to focus on specifics when writing papers, and he showed that passion will always make classes interesting. He has genuinely improved my overall education and showed how to approach learning so you can always gain from it.

Quality: The quality of teaching was excellent. Professor Walker did an amazing job at fully unpacking course material, even though we fell behind schedule. The class was behind schedule because professor Walker made sure to cover every subject matter, and I really appreciated his care for the course material. His papers offered students the opportunity to critically think about the subjects mentioned in the course, and extend their knowledge past the simple recitation of facts.

Effort: I would say I put consistent effort into this class, keeping up with the readings and weekly quizzes meant staying on top of the work and timelines.

Understanding & Appreciation: I think I have a much better understanding and appreciation for the history of the American presidency and how the executive branch has been developed over time after taking this class.

Intellectual Growth: I think I have spent a lot more time thinking not just about politics but about how the presidency as an institution plays a role in the government.

Quality: I think the quality of teaching was very high, I felt like everything was explained in a concise and interesting manner, and I really enjoyed the material!

Additional Reason(s):

Effort: I put great effort into this course, showing up to almost every class having done the reading prior, spending substantial time on essays and preparing for tests, and asking clarifying questions when necessary to ensure my understanding was correct.

Understanding & Appreciation: It offered a comprehensive explanation of executive leadership in the US government, using each president as a case study of sorts to explain concepts (which I found effective and memorable for retaining information)

Intellectual Growth: This course taught me how to take specific pieces of evidence (the primary sources we would read) and expand their content to argue a larger point. It also taught me how to effectively compare and contrast opposing viewpoints without just regurgitating the content of the evidence.

Quality: Professor Walker was always very professional, prepared for class, and most importantly, excited to teach the course subject. He clearly has a love for what he does and it shows in his teaching. He is very accommodating to students and understands that things come up which I greatly appreciated.

Additional Reason(s):Effort: Every week I did the readings usually the day before class. This was sometimes quizzed, so in those cases I carefully underlined topics relating to questions on the quiz to help better my understanding of that particular president. For the paper prompts, I tended to go with the topic that was more recent since I could recall our class discussions of the sources readings. I did not put as much effort into those papers i.e. not using the writing center, nor writing them in advance time to properly understand all the sources relating to my particular topic. For exams, the first one I found a bit tricky to understand where quotes would be pulled from, yet by the second exam I felt better prepared.Understanding & Appreciation: This course is all about US presidents, so it was more in depth review of presidents. Some of the course was review, yet I would say my appreciation for the course subject increased as it was taught very well.Intellectual Growth: Reading direct sources is very difficult, so I would say it helped me grow there.Quality: The strengths would be very interesting discussions since even if we were learning something boring, there would be at least something interesting in the lecture. A weakness would be the rhetorical questions I felt sometimes too many were asked and it could be confusing if the teacher was asking a real question.

Reason(s): Other requirement

Additional Reason(s):Effort: In this class, the general setup was a lot of note-taking and understanding of the U.S. political system and the government. There were brief discussions but our understanding of the content was contingent on listening to professor walker and engaging with his proposed questions. This course also consisted of reading homework assignments in preparation for the class topics.Understanding & Appreciation: This course gave me a profound understanding of the U.S. executive system in a way that I had never understood before. I found myself making connections between presidents and actively dealing with questions concerning totalitarianism and absolute power, checks and balances, and what it means to exercise executive energy.Intellectual Growth: This course educated me on the U.S federal system and made me understand the innerworkings and how that occurred on the ways that presidents governed.Quality: I think that Professor Walker is a wonderful professor and cares greatly about the content he is teaching and making sure that we have a thorough understanding also. He is also really patient and is open to having discussions after class and going over content if there is any confusion. My only concern with the class was that I felt that he would do a lot of talking but there usually was not a whole lot of room to participate. I wish we engaged more with our classmates and held things like debates. It would have made the atmosphere a lot more engaging. Nonetheless, I loved the class and I am really happy that Professor Walker was my instructor.

I just wish there was more discussion or other components besides just lecture and notes. I also wish he woudnt glorify presidents so much as we rarely talked about the negative aspects of certian leaders. Aside from that I enjoyed the class, I would just alter the lecture because we were almost always behind and some fluff like presidents personal lives was given more importance than critical concepts. Additional Reason(s):Effort: This class required me to stay on top of my reading. Although the reading load was lighter compared to my more rigorous courses, reading and note taking was important to do well on papers and exams. Being attentive in class was also important because professors Walkers lectures would extend outside of the reading. Taking detailed notes and keeping up with the reading was what I feel made me successful in this class.Understanding & Appreciation: I have gained a whole new understanding of the United States Presidency and what it means.

Besides what I learned about the individual presidents, I learned a lot about the legal process in the United States and how the Constitution functions. This course greatly shifted my perspective about many of the Presidents and the U.S. political system in general.

Intellectual Growth: This course has made me consider another area of academic interest. Leaving this class I'm definitely more interested in political science and would like to pursue other courses to learn more about Constitutional law (since we touched on it in this course).Quality: I think its very clear that Professor Walker is extremely passionate about this course and all of the material that we cover. Reason(s): Reputation of the instructor
Interest in the course materialAdditional Reason(s):Effort: Notetaking during class, around 2 hours of studying per day the week leading up to exams, writing papers.Understanding & Appreciation: This was a course I was not initially interested in, but I ended up really enjoying it and signing up for a similar class with Professor Walker again the following semester. He presented the material in a way that made it interesting and engaging.Intellectual Growth: This class helped my study skills for this type of exam and helped me improve my writing through the reflections. The reflections also forced me to do a different type of thinking that was not required in my high school classes.Quality: This course was taught very well. Professor made his expectations clear, he was forgiving when class needed to be missed, and was always happy to answer questions. He was readily available over email so I never needed to go meet with him in person. I found the study sessions before exams to be helpful and benefited my learning in this course.
